

Collection Practice

To support the mission to furnish hope, Sharing Connections collects personal information including contact information [full name, phone number, email and mailing address] or information on how you learned about us in a central database.

This information is never shared, sold or rented to any other organizations – for profit or charitable. At the time any correspondence is made with donors in receiving or soliciting donations, the donor may opt out of the database or future correspondences [see below Questions or Options]. Furthermore, donors may indicate that any or all gifts be listed publically or not (anonymously) such as an Annual Report for the organization.

Usage Practice

Sharing Connections utilizes information about its donors to understand their giving preferences and interests in our work. The contact information is used to update donors on the progress of the organization as well as solicit additional kinds of support. Sharing Connections values the feedback of its supporters to continue refining its practices in delivering on the mission.

Credit Card Practice

Any donation made to Sharing Connections via our website is done through a third party that maintains PCI compliance. Credit Card information is not retained by Sharing Connections, unless donor asks in writing for purposes of future giving.

Questions or Options

If you have questions about your information at Sharing Connections or wish to be removed from our list, please contact Maria Nelson at mnelson@sharingconnections.org.